This course covers a wide range of technical aspects of advanced emergency First Aid. The hands-on approach keeps learners constantly active and is designed to lay a solid foundation in safety and advanced first aid skills. If the principles taught in this course are adhered to, and continue with diligence, they will serve as an excellent start to ensuring that you keep yourself and others safe.

COURSE OUTLINE

This course comprises indoor and outdoor training sessions over 8 days. Classroom-based theory with practical sessions interwoven together to make the learner grasp as much as possible to prepare them for a real-time emergency. During the classroom sessions, learners will be taught the role of the advanced emergency first aider within the chain of survival, emergency health care system, and interaction with other emergency response services. Legal and ethical principles for the provision of risk-based advanced first aid. Maintaining personal health and safety as an advanced emergency first aider and basic awareness of mental health of bystanders, patient and First Aid Responder. Practising CPR and choking maneuvers on adults, children, and infants. Learning the quick application and use of an AED and so much more.

This is followed by a recap, discussions, planning, and preparation knowledge and skills wise to treat many illnesses and injuries in an emergency situation.

At the end, the learner will be assessed and if found competent they will receive a QCTO accredited certificate. The course equips the learner with the skills to assist others in an emergency and be prepared to assist within their scope of work whether in the indoors or outdoor setting.
